This one WHIFFS pretty bad, which makes this week's themeless a complete disappointment for me. I rely on these days to be good. Great even. Yesterday's was more a matter of taste—the puzzle wasn't empirically bad, it just missed me. A forum for solvers of cryptic crossword puzzles published in the National Post. A crossword is a word puzzle that usually takes the form of a square or a rectangular grid of white-and black-shaded squares. The game's goal is to fill the white squares with letters, forming words or phrases, by solving clues, which lead to the answers. Occasionally I'll ask a question that I don't have an answer for. This week... Is there a single shape that can be folded into both a regular tetrahedron and a regular cube?
